Q.2 A) Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below it. 10

It is clear that language is used for more than one purpose. The man who hits his thumb-nail with a hammer and utters a string of courses is using language to relive his feeling and needs no audience but himself. But when the philosopher uses language to clarify his ideas on a subject, he is using it as an instrument of thought. When two women gossip over the fence, or two men exchange greetings as they pass in the street, language is being used to strengthen the bonds between the members of a society. Language, it seems, is a multipurpose instrument one function, however, seems to be basic: language enables us to influence people's behaviour, and thereby makes human co-operation possible. Some animals co-operate, especially the social animals like bees and ants; but human co-operation is more thorough, more detailed, more effective than that found anywhere in the animal kingdom. This human co-operation would be unthinkable without language.

Questions:

- 1) Why is language called a multipurpose instrument?
- 2) What are the purposes for which language is used?
- 3) What is the basic function of language?
- 4) How is human co-operation different from co-operation among bees and ants?
- 5) How does a philosopher use language?
